ALLIES AWAIT BULGARIANS' MOVE IN WAR

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS SEVERED AND ENTENTE POWERS LOOK FOR OPERATIONS BY BULGARIA SOON.

HAVE FAITH IN GREECE

Although King and Government Leader Are at Odds Matters Are Expected to Turn for Best.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 7.—The allies having broken off diplomatic relations with Bulgaria, news is expected momentarily of that nation's active participation in the war on the side of the central powers.

Her King and the late leader of her government being at odds, Greece is closing a coalition cabinet, pending the construction of which her policy will be obscure. There are no misgivings in England, however, that she will co-operate in any way with Bulgaria. The cabinet crisis has in no manner impeded the landing of allied troops at Salonika, and the fact that these forces are on Greek soil is considered best guarantee that Greece ultimately must align herself with the entente powers, with which Premier Alexander Zaimis is in sympathy.

Both Lines See Battles.

Champagne in the west and Drinck in the east are now the scenes of struggles most likely to bring decisive results. The Germans are still engaged in concentrating against Drinck, evidently bent on a supreme effort to take the city. The Russians, however, are delivering hard blows all along the line, the British and French press professes to see a general Russian "recovery" which the activities of the allies in the west are French Make Important Capture.

Capture by the French of the village and hill of Tahre is a success of considerable local importance. The hill, although less than 200 feet high, was one of the most important German positions in that sector.

On most of the remainder of the front there is still in progress the violent cannonading which usually precedes infantry attacks.

Entente Notes Presented.

Paris, Oct. 7.—Circumstances which attended the presentation of the notes of the entente powers to Bulgaria are set forth in an official communication received here today from Sofia. This document, signed in the Hayas by the correspondent of the Hayas, News Agency, on Tuesday, and sent in transmission, was issued by the Bulgarian government before it made a reply to the note. The statement follows:

"On Monday between four and six o'clock in the afternoon the president of the council received a visit from representatives of France, Russia and Great Britain. The first two presented notes not identical in the character of an ultimatum in which were demanded an interpretation of the neutrality proclaimed by Bulgaria and of the object of Bulgaria's mobilization, and insisted, under threats of diplomatic relations, that Bulgaria break off openly within twenty-four hours, its relations with the central powers and send away the German and Austrian officers said to be among the staffs of the different Bulgarian armies."

Service Verbal Notice.

The representative of Great Britain presented a verbal note declaring that Great Britain would break with Bulgaria if activity should occur in the Balkans as a result of Bulgarian mobilization.

In consequence of the absence of instructions, the representative of Italy has not yet joined his colleagues in this action.

The Bulgarian government today will have to the representatives three notes, not identical, in which it will explain the spirit of armed neutrality of Bulgaria while pointing out the dangers that may arise from fresh encouragement given to Serbia. Rejecting categorically the accusation relative to the pretentious presence of German and Austrian officers in the Bulgarian army, it will declare that it cannot drive away officers which do not exist.

At the same time, the government will present a response to the two preceding notes of the entente powers of which their representatives have been advised through the French minister.

The Bulgarian government purposes to publish a Green Book of considerations and negotiations with the powers of the quadruple entente."

To Form New Cabinet.

London, Oct. 7.—Alexander Zaimis has accepted King Constantine's invitation to form a new cabinet, according to a Reuter dispatch from Athens. He has assured leaders of the opposition that they will be allowed representation.

SHIP OF MYSTERY SHELLS BRITisher IN PACIFIC WATERS

Vessel Porting at Rio De Janeiro Tries of Queen Incident After Leaving Mexico.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 7.—The British freight steamer San Molito arrived here today from Tuxpan, Mexico, and reported that she had been attacked at sea by an unknown vessel. The captain of the San Molito reported that soon after leaving Tuxpan, his vessel was attacked in the night, and that eight projectiles exploded against her sides. One sailor was killed and six wounded. The vessel was damaged, but managed to escape.

NAME A NEW SECRETARY FOR WISCONSIN ALUMNI

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Oct. 7.—Robert S. Cray, a Wisconsin graduate with the class of 1904, has been named general secretary of the Wisconsin Alumni Association to take the place of Thomas Lloyd Jones, resigned.

FRENCH AIRMEN HURL BOMBS AT LILLE BRIDGE TO HINDER FOE

Bridge at Lille.

This photo shows the railroad bridge at Lille which trains use in communication with Lens. To prevent the Germans from rushing reinforcements to the battle lines at Lens French aviators have several times severely bombarded this bridge and held up railroad traffic. Notice the ruined houses which still stand a monument to the fighting between the French and the Germans in this section. The bridge and town are strongly guarded by German troops.

POWDER MILL BLAST KILLS FOUR; CAUSES $315,000 DAMAGES

Emporium, Pa. Plant Explosion to Be Investigated—Explosives Ready for the Allies.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Emporium, Pa., Oct. 7.—Four men were instantly killed, another probably fatally hurt and six seriously injured, it was stated today, in the explosion last night at the plant of the Acton Explosive Company. A large quantity of smokeless powder prepared for shipment to India to be used in approaching maturity, exploded from some yet undetermined cause, blew the two story dry ing house to atoms and shook the surrounding country for miles around.

Inasmuch as the mill had been closely guarded day and night, officials informally expressed the opinion today that the explosion was accidental. The investigation is being conducted, however. The dead men all came here from Wilmington, Delaware.

The plant which was recently erected at a reported cost of $500,000, consisted of a large number of small buildings, of which the wrecked one was the largest.

Officials fixed the property loss at $315,000.

ORE SHIPS STALLED IN SWEDISH WATERS

German Steamers Laid Up Following Report That British Had Blown Up Waterway.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Stockholm, via London, Oct. 7.—Iron, oiling tanks and other British steamers had mined the waterway in the Baltic between Trelleborg, Sweden and Samsitz, Germany. Twenty large German steamers laden with iron ore and wool are anchored in Swedish waters.

For the last two days, ferries belonging to the Swedish state always have been using the iron ore steamers to service between Trelleborg and Samsitz. Traffic in Trelleborg is seriously congested and no German mail has arrived recently. Swedish shipping companies have decided to paint the national colors on hulls of ships to avert danger arising from mistake of identity.

ANOTHER GULF STORM REPORTED ON THE WAY

Ports All Along Coast Ordered to Display Signals on Receipt of Announcement.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Another West Indian storm headed apparently for the American coast was reported today in the gulf of Mexico. Storm warnings were ordered displayed on Gulf coast stations from Mobile to Cedar Keys, Fla.

STATE CLOSES CASE IN TRIAL OF BELL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Indianapolis, Oct. 7.—The state closed its case in the trial of Mayor Joseph C. Bell, prepared with election conspiracy today. The defense was prepared to start introducing testimony immediately.

NO APPOINTMENT MADE FOR TAX COMMISSIONER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—Gov. Philipp is appearing at county fairs in southwestern Wisconsin this week. He will return to Madison Saturday. At the executive office no information could be obtained regarding the appointment of the new tax commissioner. Prof. Adams' resignation took effect Oct. 1, and it was generally expected that the position would be filled immediately. There are some who declare that the position will not be filled. The governor's friends advised a one man tax commission before the legislature.

FOUR MADISON DELEGATES AT MINNEAPOLIS MEET

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—Four delegates from Madison have gone to Minneapolis to attend the fourth conference of the National Housing association. S. J. Williams of the industrial commission, E. M. McMahon of the local board of commerce, Miss Leulah Smith and Mrs. William Little of the Associated Charities are delegates. Among the speakers will be John Noland, former landscape artist of this city, and Dr. Arnold B. Hall of the university.

STATE CLUB WOMEN UNABLE TO ENLIST ESCH FOR SUFFRAGE

Delegation Fails to Secure His Indorsement of Suffrage as National Issue.—Mrs. Pennybacker at Session.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 7.—Discussion of laws affecting women and children which were put over by the Senate's big topic before the State Federation of Women's clubs today.

Mrs. Louise Kahlenberg of Madison, chairman of the legislative committee, who devotes almost all of her time to this work during sessions of the legislature, was in charge of the discussion.

Each Sidesteps Suffragists.

Fifty suffragettes, headed by Mrs. Ben Hooper of Oshkosh, Miss Louise Stearns of Milwaukee, failed to get a satisfactory declaration from Congressman John J. Esch, when he moved on his office in a body. The suffragettes demanded that he declare himself. He made the following statement:

"I voted for suffrage referendum in Wisconsin and will do so again if it comes up, but my district voted against it. I never did, and the state of Wisconsin by 90,000 votes, therefore, voted against the constitutional amendment when it came up in congress. I am with you in any efforts you may make to convince the men of Wisconsin that suffrage is a good thing, but I am not in favor of forcing suffrage on an unwilling state by the outside pressure of a United States constitutional amendment."

He assembly gave Miss Percy V. Pennybacker, president of the general federation, a rousing ovation when she entered the convention hall today. She spoke in enthusiastic terms:

"Bring greetings from the Colorado federation and from the president of that association," she said, "and I wish to express my own pleasure of being a Wisconsin delegate for the third time."

She announced the plan for baby week—which is to take place March 1—when the committee of general federation and national children's bureaus will unite in interest of children of the country.

She advised club women of Wisconsin to make plans to carry on cooperative work during the baby week. She also appealed to the delegation of Wisconsin to be present at the federation held in New York in May.

OSHKOSH TAILOR FOUND IN RIVER

Theories of Suicide and Accidental Drowning Are Held Without Proof of Either.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, Oct. 7.—The body of Gustave Mueller, a tailor, was found this morning floating in the Fox river, near the Soo Line railroad bridge. It was taken from the water and removed to an undertaking establishment. From the appearance of the body it had been in the water about two days. There were no marks of violence and it was thought that death was caused by drowning, presumably accidental. The man's identity was made clear by papers found in his pockets.

BRYAN HOPES TO BE POWER IN POLITICS

To Continue Political Activities, He Says, But Does Not Plan to Hold Any Office.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7.—Wm. J. Bryan in a statement here today said that the plans I have made for the remainder of my life include active participation in politics, but do not include the holding of any office. He said he enjoyed liberties of private citizen.

The former secretary of state said he hoped prohibition and woman suffrage would not become issues in the next presidential campaign, but believes both these questions will have to be met in national politics "when the time is ripe for them."

BAG RUSH AT MADISON ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Oct. 7.—The annual freshman bag rush will take place Friday afternoon at four-thirty, when over a thousand freshmen will attempt to beat their superior classmen. The second year men have organized and planned to make up for the defeat handed them last fall. The affair will be held on the lower campus.

U. S. WHEAT CROP BREAKS ALL RECORDS

GOVERNMENT'S OCTOBER REPORT INDICATES BILLION MARK HAS BEEN RAISED.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—The marriage of President Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt, a wealthy widow and society leader, who has lived in Washington nearly all her life, will be an event of this winter. This news, following the announcement of their engagement on Wednesday night, has created a sensation in official and social Washington, coming as it did as a complete surprise. The president's courtship has been a very quiet affair and even the rumor of a marriage had not, as yet, gained credence.

According to the most reliable information obtainable, the president and Mrs. Galt have been engaged for about ten days. The fact had been a closely guarded secret in the family circle and few of the president's closest official associates were aware of the Met About a Year Ago.

Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Galt, for the first time a few months after the death of Mrs. Wilson a year ago last August, he was not until last spring, however, that he began to evince a more than casual interest in the widow, who was as frequently the guest of his daughter Margaret, and his son-in-law, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones and physician, it appears, was the means of bringing the president and Mrs. Galt together. It was Miss Bones, who has made her home with the president's family for several years, who really fostered the romance.

Miss Bones, who was convalescing from an illness, had been advised by Dr. Grayson to take daily walks. Dr. Grayson introduced her to Mrs. Galt, an ardent pedestrian, and the two women formed the habit of taking long tramps together through the parks and gardens of the capital. Mrs. Galt was often at luncheons at the White House, as first at luncheons, at which the means of bringing the president and Mrs. Galt together, was the means of bringing the president and Mrs. Galt together. Hiram Shuman Given Commitment
Law Term in Court This Morning.—Frank Sager Draws Ninety Days.

Hiram Shuman, a farm laborer of this city, was sentenced to one year in the county jail today by the Rockwood judge, H. J. Maxfield, in the municipal court when Shuman was arraigned on the charge of wife desertion.
The complaint was made by F. Pierce, member of the Janesville Salvation
Army, and Shuman was arrested yesterday by Constable W. E. Dulin near Indian Ford. When brought before court Shuman at first wanted a preliminary examination but changed his plea to guilty, admitting that he had deserted his wife and left her in destitute and necessitous circumstances. The wages during the year's patrolment will be paid to the wife.

During the last three months there have been an unusual number of complaints on the desertion charge, and no warrants are pending on this charge. Lack of work is said to be the reason for the negligent husbands not giving the proper support to their wives.

Frank Sager did not attempt to try the "not guilty" system of escaping sentence in the municipal court and was given ninety days in default of twenty-five days which he had planned to bring during some days.

He was originally charged with drunkenness and vagrancy and he refused to plead guilty to the latter charge. This count was withdrawn from the warrant and the three months sentence imposed for intoxication.

One of the agents of the state board of control was in the city this morning to make preparations for the prosecution of several men who have been placed under the state board by Judge Maxfield.

GENERAL AVERAGES GIVES THE BOSTON RED SOX A SHADE OVER PHILLIES.

DOPE FAVERS RED SOX

Phillies Have Edge on First Base Only—But Figures Never Won a World Series Yet.

(See Associated Press.)

New York, Oct. 7.—In the world's series between the Philadelphia National and the Boston Americans both teams will be well provided with field material. All told there are no less than thirteen players who may be called upon to take defensive positions around the base paths. The Red Sox have seven experienced infielders, who by a series of shifts, can be formed into several combinations of unusual strength both at the bat and on the diamond. The Phillips, while well equipped with regulars, are not so strong numerically or in general average as their rivals when the inferior squads are considered as a whole.

The apparent advantage possessed by the American leaguers does not count heavily against the Phillips. Provided the two teams are able to go through the series without the necessity of changes due to accidents or illness. Should emergencies arise, however, where it becomes imperative to call upon the reserve forces of the Boston club would be a factor worthy of much consideration in endeavoring to forecast the outcome of the play.

Boston Line-Up.—During the most important portion of the race for the American league pennant the Boston infield line-up was, as a rule, as follows: Hoblitzel, first base; Barry, second base; Gardner, third base; Scott, shortstop.

Gainer was frequently used to hold down the initial bag, however, while Wagner filled in at second and Janesville Scott's place at short. In addition, Barry is handling the duties of both short and third; Janesville can hold down third, and Scott is not unfamiliar with the duties at second and third.

Opposed to the versatile and interchangeable infield, the Phillips have Luders, at first, Niehoff at second, Scott at third, and Bancroft for shortstop. Byrne is an infielder of calibre, and Dugay forms the reserve corps. The first line of the Moran team, however, has been played in a number of games during the last season, showing fair strength, but not in the field. Dugay, who is the son of a member of the Phillips clan, is figured almost entirely this year as a pitch hitter and is not likely to be called upon to play unless an unusual emergency arises.

Figures Given. Notwithstanding the apparent superiority in numbers and veteran material of the Red Sox, the playing averages of the two squads fall to very great advantage one way or another. The seven Boston infielders have a combined batting average of .325 against the Phillips' .261, while the fielding averages are even closer figures being: Philadelphia, .955; Boston, .953. When the eight players who will probably form the two infields in the opening game are compared, the difference in the average is greater, but the advantage about evenly divided. Luders, Niehoff, Scott, and Bancroft have a combined batting average of .364 and a batting average of .951. The Boston quartet consisting of Hoblitzel, Barry, Gardner, and Scott, show a grand average of .363 in the field and .254 at bat.

Luders Better. Comparing these players, position to position, the figures indicate that Luders is a better batter and fielder than Niehoff, with the base stealing ability about equal, and the Red Sox's sackman holding an advantage in sacrifice hitting, for Luders' average at bat is .319 to Hoblitzel's .281, while in the field Luders' averages .931 to Hoblitzel's .986. At second, however, Barry, and Niehoff are likely to be the leading performers, the former Athlete surpassing the player secured by the Phillips from Cincinnati in exchange for former manager Charles Doonan. Barry has batted .270 and fielded .965 this season to Niehoff's .239 and .943. Niehoff is much faster on the bases, having stolen nineteen bases to Barry's zero in this department of play. Barry, however, has shown a far greater steadiness in the field and has a .980 in his figure in sacrifice hitting. At third, the fans who witness the series will have an opportunity to compare the work of Gardner and Stock, for the latter is the choice of the choice of Manager Moran, since his record for the season shows that he is a harder hitting and better fielder than Byrne, although figuring in but half the number of games credited to Byrne. Stock has a fielding average about thirty points better than Gardner, but is fourteen points shy of the Red Sox's third batter's batting ability. Gardner is superior to Stock in running and is credited with more sacrifice hits, but is apparently less steady in the handling of difficult chances.

Rival Shortstops. Comparing the records of the rival shortstops it is seen that Bancroft, the Philadelphia player, has a much greater average with the bat but falls below Scott, the Boston player, in fielding. Bancroft has played in almost all the games of the season and his averages are: Batting, .245; Fielding, .201. Scott in less than one hundred games has batted .194 and fielded .66. In base stealing and sacrifice hitting, Bancroft's record shows to advantage, while the latter is considered to be a steadier fielder.

It is perfectly apparent from a study of the season's averages that Manager Moran and Manager Gardner have considered their arrangement of the fields from other angles than mere batting and fielding records alone, for harmonious teamwork and skillful fielding cannot always be expressed or proved by figures.

The Outfields. The outfields of the Red Sox and the Phillips are expected to play roughly equal importance in the coming world's series between the Boston Americans and Philadelphia Nationalals. No other department of the rival teams can show the collection of stars that will be found among the eight players who are available for places in the outer gardens. Mention need only be made of Tris Speaker and Harry Hooper for the Carrigan forces and Cactus Gavvy Cravath, Pat Moran's home run slugger, in order to establish the high standard of these outfields.

As to which is the stronger in all-round offensive and defensive play, there is much argument but such advantage as may exist is generally conceded to the Red Sox. Each club has a regular fielding trio and one utility player, the line-up being as follows:

Figures for Boston. Eliminating the two utility fielders and considering the outfield as units, the unofficial averages for the season show that Boston has a twenty point advantage in batting strength while the Philadelphia trio is five points stronger in fielding. The Red Sox combination is also shown to be faster on the paths since it is credited with having stolen fifty-four bases to the Phillips forty-three. In extra base hits the winners of the American league certainly outclass the senior members of the national, but the latter is superior to the Phillips in their ability to drive out two and three base hits but still behind the Phillips in home runs, due in great part to the terrific slugging of Cravath on his home grounds.

Considered individually the outstanding strength of the Red Sox outfield is made more apparent. In right field Hooper will be opposed by Cravath and in the records the former has the advantage of stolen bases, sacrifice hits and fielding, while

Tris Speaker.

At center Tris Speaker has the better of Dode Paskert in batting, fielding and base stealing. Speaker has hit .323 during the league season, scoring twenty-four two baggers, twelve three baggers, seventeen sacrifice hits, twenty-five stolen bases, and 160 times at bat. Paskert in 290 times at bat, has scored seventy hits, forty-one runs, eleven bases, twenty-five sacrifice hits, four doubles, three triples and a like number of home runs, giving him an average of .242. In fielding the difference is not so marked for Paskert led .970 to Speaker's .975.

BLEEDING A NATION STRONG.
On this side of the Atlantic, no matter what the personal preferences are, Entente or Allies, the final outcome of this great struggle as regards Russia is one that puzzles even the astute mind. It is a problem that is bothering the statesmen of Europe quite a bit just at present, but which ever way it comes out it means an awakening of a nation, of millions of people, that have long been slumbering. The only question is whether these people should be suddenly awakened before prepared for the real truth of their condition? This is the question. "The conquest of Russia is almost an axiomatic impossibility," says the Wall Street Journal. Then it continues:

"No war machine in any reasonable space of time, however highly organized and equipped, can do more than extend its military front and its vulnerable line of communication. The German armies of the east have achieved wonders. They cannot achieve the impossible."

"But they can do something which the German people would least desire if its rulers allowed it to look beyond superficial successes. They can take in inchoate, restless mob of one hundred and seventy million people and bleed them strong. A peasant who remains sober and saves money soon learns to do his own thinking. Suppose the German victories open the eyes of the Russian people to the rottenness at the top."

"What that rotteness was countless instances attest. When the Tsarina and the ladies of the court lit out a special train with hospital supplies for the war against Japan, it was discovered that the contents of the packages of supposed surgical supplies were waste paper. This is not a characteristic story of the Russian people, but of the bureaucratic class which autocracy tends to create."

"Assume a Russian peasant not steeped in rum, or vodka, or whatever the national water of Lethe may be, taking himself and his Duma seriously. Multiply him by many millions. Waste a few of those millions on the battlefield. Give him a savings bank account."

"What of the 'Slav peril'? Is not Germany, by her very success, converting it from a convenient political pretext into a force so serious, so self-organized, so spiritual, so single-minded, as to release the most tremendous undeveloped reservoir of energy in Europe?"

GOOD HARD SENSE.

The following editorial from the Chicago Examiner so closely coincides with the thought conveyed by the Gazette some weeks ago that more attention should be paid to our schools to the "Three R's" that it is reprinted below to show what one colony of healthy people are doing for their children in hopes of having them more efficient men and women. Not that the public schools and their present system is to be condemned, but there is room for improvement, especially in spelling and writing. The average student receives good training in the lower grades but little or no attention is paid to these essential traits in their school work, if he work of the average graduate of our high schools, universities and colleges is any criterion. However, the Chicago parents seek to solve this, and as the Examiner says:

"There is a colony of wealthy Chicagoans cut off on the North Shore who have not been stampeded by modern methods in education."

"They are starting an independent school for their children this fall with the avowed intention of letting their sons and girls have the advantages of an old-fashioned country school education. Most of these parents attended country schools when they themselves were children, and they can afford to let their children have the same advantages."

"The point at once arises as to where the superiority of the old, simple brand of schooling is. The answer is easy for those who knew the 'little red schoolhouse' at its best."

"These rich Chicagoans are hiring tutors for their children who will go back to the fundamental three R's as he means studies during school hours. There will be enough tutors to pay attention to individual pupils, and there will be play directors to keep the boys and girls healthily employed before and after school hours."

"Some rock-ribbed champions of the public school system will find fault with all this as undemocratic and exclusive. It is obviously neither from the viewpoint of the parents. They are merely doing away with the trimmings of the modern public school system that have been tacked on since they were children."

"Recent experiments by university professors, during the examination of matriculation papers, show a woeful deficiency in the three R's among those who seek to enter college from the public grammar schools and even high schools. Facts are more eloquent than theories. A majority of these would-be collegiates cannot spell, and few are good grammarians."

"We cannot very well blame wealthy parents for desiring the best obtainable education for their children."

"If the despised three R's again come into their own as a result of such experiments as we have noted, the North Shore rebels will deserve recognition as public benefactors."

A WOMAN'S CLUB.

There appears to be a misunderstanding among the earnest workers of the city relative to the establishment of a Y. W. C. A. The regulations that control such an organization are narrow in their scope. They restrict the governing body to a certain number of members of a few churches of restricted denominations. It is not a fair proposition to the general public. If this can not be overcome why not surmount the difficulties by organizing a woman's club in the city to own, erect, purchase, buy and control property for certain purposes identical with the national Y. W. C. A. organization? It would not be necessary to affiliate with the national order to get the best of instructors, the finest of equipment and it would be a civic organization pure and simple. The Gazette happens to have been informed that a thousand dollars is available for the purpose of organizing some organization that is not based on such narrow lines as the Y. W. C. A. general charter is, which would be donated for the purpose of organizing a woman's club, or something of that sort. There are certainly others in the city, public spirited enough, to help swell the list of subscriptions so that the grand total would be a considerable sum. Why not discuss it in your club meetings? There are lots of workers among the young women of the cities that never had a Y. M. C. A. training and are just as efficient and just as capable as any who bear that label. What is needed is a woman's organization, of women, for women and by women to handle the problem that is every day becoming more and more serious for any growing city to face. The care of the young girls who come into our midst. Some without homes to go to. Some who need attention to train in the right direction, and others whom a word of advice would save from all sorts of unpleasant complications later.

The Gazette merely suggests this problem for consideration of the women of the city. The columns of the paper are open for discussion of the problems at hand. Feel free to write your views. Men, man, while he may aid materially in raising the funds needed, can merely act in a mechanical part in a manner that so nearly concerns the general sisterhood of women as a whole.

CAPITAL INVESTED.

Did you ever stop to think how much capital is invested in the various stocks in the stores of Janesville? In the dry goods, the ready-to-wear, the clothing for men, the shoes, the hats and the general equipment of the home? Its total figure goes way up in the scale of hundreds of thousands of dollars and it is safe to say that there is not another city in southern Wisconsin that gives the purchasers the wide scope of purchase possibilities as does Janesville. The fact that shoppers pass right through Madison to reach Janesville shops. That even residents of Madison come here to make their purchases, illustrates the fact that Janesville is one of the best retail centers in the southern portion of the state. In fact, it is true, and can be substantiated, there are certain stores in Janesville that carry stocks of goods that even Milwaukee retail stores hesitate to handle. This being true, why shop elsewhere? Why not buy your goods in Janesville and support the home industries? There is going to be a "Dress-up Week" shortly. Take advantage of the offerings made by the various stores and aid the local business men by your patronage instead of going elsewhere, because you receive a discount for an article which is perhaps inferior to the same article sold here at the same price you paid for it elsewhere. You live in Janesville and you should help boost your home town. You expect Janesville people to aid you, to patronize you, so patronize them in return. No matter whether you work for a salary obtained from a Janesville firm. No matter whether you are spending money paid you for services exacted in Janesville by local people or not, whether you own a factory or not, Janesville is your home and you support the home merchants and enable them to keep bigger, better and larger stocks of goods by purchasing of them.

PREVENTED BANKRUPTCY.

"The only thing that has saved the United States from commercial bankruptcy has been the European war," declares a leading Illinois manufacturer who has recently returned from England and Germany. "Remove that cause and the manufacturers of the world will make America the battleground of the greatest industrial war the world has ever seen."

The earning capacity of the 100,000,000 people of the United States represents a purchasing power greater than that of any two other nations of the world put together, and the standard of living to which they have become accustomed makes that purchasing power potential under normal conditions. Surely such a market is worth striving for by our foreign competitors, even under a protective tariff. And under a democratic tariff the domestic market, so far as our industrial life is concerned, becomes nothing but a curse to our foreign rivals.

The Illinois manufacturer goes on to say: "A month—two months—after peace is declared in Europe will see President Wilson and congress in a state of panic due to ruinous industrial conditions. A vast army of men who have been engaged in the European war will be available for the peaceful industrial pursuits of these countries, and they will be willing or forced to give their services for even less than the meager compensation they received before the war. And not only men, but thousands of women now being trained in the mills will be 30th, the established taxes have produced 16 per cent and the remaining 18 per cent has been advanced by the Bank of France.

LOOK FOR SURPRISE IN Y. M. C. A. RACES

BUSINESS MEN TAKING AN ACTIVE INTEREST IN ASSOCIATION.

VARIOUS TEAMS BUSY

Grand Total Will Probably Show Decided Change in Position of Teams in State.

Redoubled activity on the part of the various teams working under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. in the membership campaign will show decided results when the final count is made.

Many of the teams have been obtained of future members, but not always has the cash accompanying the signing of the card, and these can not be counted until the cash is received so the grand total will not show the actual number of signers thus far obtained.

Many business men are sending "substitutes" to the association by purchasing membership for young men and boys who do not afford them, thereby not only helping the association but also materially aiding the recipients.

It is an idea that appeals to many and in one case ten members are to be thus disposed of. There are many young men and boys in the city who look with longing and envious eyes at the association building and listen to the tales of the good times enjoyed, who long to belong but can not afford the expense and it is these future citizens who would be most benefited by the substitute idea.

Third Day's Race.
The third day of the Y. M. C. A. auto race ended with the addition of sixty-three new members. Although Janesville dropped down to the last position in the standing of the different cities last night, Secretary Bearinger says the outcome will be different in tonight's racing. At the meeting last night two captains failed to appear and make their reports. These two teams are reported to be working on some big propositions which will boost the standing of Janesville to second or third place for tomorrow.

Mitchell Leads.
Captain Buell and his Mitchell team are making some fast time for they have been over thousand eighty miles and are out of sight of all cars except the Buick which is near the eight hundred mark. The Buick team took a big jump when the members of the Baptist church and Sunday school pledged one hundred dollars to pay for the memberships of twenty boys of their Sunday school.

Rapid Increase.
The membership has been increasing every day, and enough to satisfy the members of the teams, so each one is going to make a special effort today and tomorrow to place Janesville in a good position. Racine is in fourth place, with only sixteen more than Janesville; Wausau, which is in second position, leads Janesville by sixty members, so the local teams have a good show to raise the standing of Janesville. Beloit is clear in the front with a lead of two hundred and two over any one city.

Local Teams.
The standing of the teams for today is as follows:

Mitchell	1080 miles
Buell	780 miles
Ford	540 miles
Cadillac	520 miles
Dodge	220 miles
Hudson	180 miles
Overland	180 miles
Saxon	100 miles

The standing of the five cities are:

Beloit	717 members
Wausau	515 members
Eau Claire	507 members
Racine	471 members
Janesville	455 members

TWO HUNDRED QUESTIONS

A Little Stock-Taking, Now and Then

But, if, instead of making our birthday merely a matter of "cake and orange" (or their modern equivalent, birthday gifts), we did manage to find out our birthday the day in which to do a little stock-taking, would it do us any harm?

When we go to town with a ten-dollar bill and come back with ten cents, we usually sit down and reckon what has become of the money. Shall we do less when we have spent a year?

Some of the Questions We Might Ask

Have I grown mentally in the past year?

Have I made any new friends?

Have I kept all my old friends?

GEMS WORTH $100,000 ADORN ACTRESSES IN FASHION DRAMA

Have I strengthened my character in any way?

Have I learned any lessons from my failures and mistakes?

Have I gained any on my betrothing fault?

How have I treated my body? How I treat it more or less efficient for my treatment of it in the past year?

How do I stand financially?

Have I gone a little further toward shaping a worthy creed of action and belief for myself?

These are some of the questions that my own life suggests to me. Yours will suggest others to you.

Today may be the birthday of some of your reader friends, and now they will give these suggestions some consideration because of the coincidence.

But let them not be the only ones. The business that went on indefinitely without a stock-taking would soon be in a muddle. Is the business of your life less important?

Surely he cannot be unmarried, else his wife would have reminded him that he had promised to go to the wedding-pictures with her.

Knowing that the difficulty of living on twenty-four hours a day is almost as great a problem as the high cost of living, I wouldn't dare ask my readers to devote a whole evening to such a task, or to answer two hundred questions.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-four years old and have been engaged since I was nineteen. The man I am to marry is five years my senior. We expected to marry when I was twenty and he was twenty-five, but just before the time we set my mother had a stroke of paralysis and I had to give up the marrying for a while. Father and mother are alive and I have a married sister, but of course they could do nothing, and so all the care of mother fell on me.

My fiancé says that he has waited as long as he is going to and that I simply have to marry him at once. He says that I have been working far too hard and worn out before any time. He has been talking to my sister and sister thinks that she ought to marry, too. She says that father can get someone to keep house and give mother the attention I have, and that if father can't afford it, our husbands can help. Both of us can live near enough to drop in every day or anytime we are wanted.

I am getting old and worn out before

This plan suits everyone but father and mother. Mother says she can't live in the city and that she won't go outside the back door of her home again. Father says he can't afford a housekeeper and that he doesn't want one any way. He thinks that I owe it to my mother not to marry while she is alive and needs me. I don't know what to do. Please advise me.

PERPLEXED.

Since your fiancé and your sister's husband are willing to help pay for a housekeeper, I think you are free to marry. Your mother and father are extremely selfish to be unwilling to ruin your life just to make them happy. Marry and don't for an minute think that you are doing the wrong thing.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please advise me what to do? I am a boy of sixteen, in the sophomore year of high school. During my freshman year I went with a very pretty girl in my class and gave her candy etc. Then I changed to a country girl who happened to be in acquaintance at school. Now, this second girl won't have anything to do with me and I want to win the first girl back. How can I make her take me again?

LION HEARTED BOY.

Ask to take her somewhere. I think she will go.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a girl for several months and I seem to be the only girl he is very much interested in. He takes me to the theater and calls on me and says that I am the only girl he really knows. Now, I went to an entertainment with a cousin of mine a short time ago and this boy was there because it was our crowd that gave the entertainment. At the same place which opened the affair he sat on one side of me and my cousin on the other, and during the entertainment we sat the same way. Then when it was over, we danced, and he didn't dance with me at all. I went home after the sixth dance, because my cousin didn't dance and I didn't care to be bored. Another couple went home when we did, and when we got outside the theater we had to back to get an umbrella. When he came back he said that my friend was looking for me and was disappointed because I had gone home. How should I treat him when I see him again? Don't you think he's very rude?

BLUE EYES.

As long as you did not go with him he was free to dance with whom ever he pleased. It would have been more tactful if him to dance with you one of the first, but you haven't anything to resent because he didn't treat you just as you always have when you meet again, and don't show that you cared.

POOR TANGO AND FOX TROT FROZE OUT IN MILWAUKEE [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 7.—Exit the modern dance craze from the scheme of things in Milwaukee. For the time the ice has frozen early this winter, the Pigeon Walk and all other forms of dance floor acrobatics will be lost and forgotten in a craze for ice skating.

Milwaukee is going to have the biggest open air ice skating rink in the middle west.

When the long protecting seawall that runs along Milwaukee harbor, one of the finest in the world, was completed, it was thought that the water with in the protected area would freeze smoothly but the first winter proved that such was not the case. The ice was too rough for skating.

Now, however, a second protection wall has been erected within the outer sea wall and the strip of water between the shores of Lake Michigan and the second wall will freeze to a glass surface. Plans are already under way to utilize this great strip of water from the McKinley beach to the head of Mason street as a municipal skating rink. It will be more than a mile and a half long and a quarter of a mile wide.

The demise of the dance has already been noted in cafes and balls where the nighting througs were wont to swirl in close embrace. One big cafe maintained a dance floor for lack of patronage. Like New York city, the people here intend to go in strong for ice skating to take the place of the trot and canter.

of the flavor of the grape, and can be made into many delicious beverages and desserts for winter. It is well made by the following recipe: Heat very ripe grapes in a crock in the oven or in double boiler or fireless cooker. When the skins are tender strain in a jelly bag. Heat the strained juice and add sugar, bringing the boiling point and pour into sterilized jars or bottles. If you use bottles, sterilize the corks and after they are in, the bottles cover with sealing wax. Use one half as much or a quarter as much sugar as grape juice. The amount added must depend on your taste, but remember that it is an easy matter to add more sugar to the grape juice, but it is impossible to take away from it later on. If you desire a clear grape juice, let the juice drip without squeezing. A more economical method is to squeeze the bag. The resulting grape juice will be a little cloudy, but its flavor will be quite as good.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Plum Butter—To every six pounds plums allow four pounds granulated sugar and one pint water. Cook until stones are out, then skin off stones. Add two tablespoons each of cloves and cinnamon and cook down to a thick jam-like consistency. Put in jars. Be careful it does not burn while cooking down.

Grape Conserves—Three pints ripe grape pulp, heated and put through colander. Add one pound seeded raisins, one pound walnut meats three pounds sugar and cook until thick. Put in jelly glasses.

"Before your own judge and your own jury?" she naively asked him. That's the way you usually have your day in court, isn't it, Mr. Havey?"

"It's you that's settin' as the court just now," he reminded her. "I reckon you can judge for yourself how much I owns ye."

In spite of herself she smiled.

"I rather think I can," she admitted. "Approximately, at least."

"I think I understand ye better than ye do me," he went on slowly. "I think ye're plumb honest in all the notions ye fetched up here, despite the fact that most of 'em are wrong. Ye've done come with a heap of money to teach folks what you know they'd ought to know. Ye didn't know that they'd rather have ignorance than charity. Ye think that you an' Almighty God have gone in partners for the regeneration of these mountains, where no woman has ever been insulted an' no man has to bar his door against thievery; where all we ask is to be left alone. I reckon every day ye're wonderin' 'Is my halo on straight?' It's natural enough that ye should be right scornful of a man that some newspaper reporter has called a murderer."

His voice fell away, and Juanita heard again the beating of the hammers out in the barn.

"Is that all?" she asked, but the man shook his head and stood there looking down on her until under the spell of his unusual eyes she felt like screaming out: "Talk if you want to, but for heaven's sake don't look at me. I can't stand it!"

"Mebyebey ef ye'd stopped to think about things," he resumed, "ye'd have seen that I didn't have no quarrel with your plans. Mebyebey I might even have been able to help ye. I could have told ye for one thing that whether the ways here be right or wrong, they've done stood fer two hundred years. Ye've got to go slow though 'em. Ye can't hardly pull up a poplar saplin' with one jerk. That's a tap-root underneath it that runs down half-way to hell."

"If people hyarabouts is distrustful of turri teachers an' ways, it's because of the samples they've had. A

You Have Taken the Boy—Very Well, I Mean to Take the Girl."

Teller came here once from the settlements to teach school. He was a smart, upstandin' teller an' well liked. A man by the name of Trevor.

"When folks found out that he was locatin' coal an' buyin' their land fer next to nothin'—robbin' them of their birthright—it looked right smart like somebody might kill him. I warned him away to save his life. We've got to make folks forget about Trevor afore he makes em trust you."

"Thank you," said Juanita coldly. "I'll try to show them that I'm not another Trevor. Are you warning me away to save my life?"

"The tolable ignoran'" went on the man, "but I've read a few books, an' one of 'em told the story of the Trojan horse. I wanted ter see what kind of a critter you was a ridin' into these hills. I come to this cabin the night ye got here to find out."

"I thought so," she quietly answered. "I was to be inspected like an immigrant, and the lord of the land wan to decide whether or not I should be sent back."

"Put it that way if ye've a mind to," he answered. "Ye was comin' to be a schoolteacher here. Well, I'd done been a schoolteacher here. I see your smile—ye're wonderin' what I could teach. Maybe, after all, it's a right good idea to teach A B C's before ya starts in with algebra an' rhetoric. Ye wouldn't have me as a friend, an' I reckon that won't break my heart."

"Then," said the girl, looking up and meeting his eyes with a flash of challenge, "I shall endeavor to get along without your favor. We could hardly have met on common ground at best. I shall teach the ten commandments, including 'Thou shalt not kill.' I shall teach that to lie hidden behind a bush and shoot an unsuspecting enemy is cowardly and despicable. Ignorance won't protect them; I see

I would not be willing to tell them that they must live and die vassals to feudal tyranny."

"No," he agreed, "ye couldn't hardly outrage your holy conscience by tryin' to teach 'em things in a way they could understand, could ye? If Jeb had come to ye, like he came to me, askin' the name of the man he sought to kill, ye would have said ter him, 'It was so-and-so, but ye mustn't harm him, because somebody writ in a book two thousand years ago that killin' is a sin.' An' the hell of it is, ye'd low such talk would satisfy him."

"Ye couldn't do no such wicked thing as to stop an' reflect that he's a mountain boy, an' that for two hundred years the blood in his veins has been a comin' down to him full of grudge-nursin' an' hate. Ye couldn't make allowances for the fact that he wasn't hatched in a barnyard to peck at corn-cob an' berries, but, in an eagle's nest—that's his bird of prey. Ye couldn't consider the fact that the killin' instinct runs in the current of his blood an' was drunk in at his mother's breast. Ye'd just teach barnyard lessons to young eagles, an' that's why ye might as well go home."

"I'm grateful for this teacher's course," said Juanita hotly, "and I'm not going home."

Anse Havey went on: "But I know that boy. I know that if I'd talked thataway he'd just about have gone out in the Israel an' got somebody. Hit might not 'a' been the right feller, and he might have found that out later. I reckon ye never had father murdered, did ye?"

"Hardly," answered the girl with a scornful toss of her head. "You see. I wasn't reared among gun-fighters."

"Well, I have," responded the man. "I was in the legislature down at Frankfort when it happened, a-helpin' to make the laws that govern this state. I was for them laws in theory—but when that word came I paired off with a Republican, so's not to lose my vote on the floor, an' I come back here to these hills an' got that feller. I reckon I ought to be ashamed to tell ye that, but I'm so plumb ignorant that I can't feel it. I knew how Jeb felt an' so I held him off with a promise to wait. Of course ye couldn't accept the help of a man like that."

He turned and withdrew his hands from his pockets.

"I'm through," he added, "an' I'm obligeed to ye fer harkenin' to me."

"There is something in your point of view, Mr. Havey," she acknowledged. "But it is all based on twisted and distorted principle."

"I don't think myself a saint. I guess I'm pretty weak. My first appeal to you was pure weakness. But I stand for ideas that the world has acknowledged to be right, and for that reason I am going to win. That is why, although I'm a girl, with none of your physical power, and no gunfighters at my back, you are secretly afraid of me. That is why you are making unfair war on me. I stand for the implacable force of civilization that must sooner or later sweep you away and utterly destroy your dominance."

For the first time Bad Anse Havey's face lost its impassiveness. His eyes clouded and became puzzled, surprised.

"I reckon I don't hardly follow ye," he said. "If ye wants it to be enemies all right, but I ain't never made no war on ye. I don't make war on women-folks, an' besides I wouldn't make a needless war nowhob. All I've got to do is to give ye enough rope an' watch ye hang yourself!"

"If you think that," she demanded, with a quick upleap of anger in her pupils. "why did you feel it necessary to prevent my buying land? Why do you coerce your vassals under fear of death, to decide my offers? Why, if my school means no menace, do you refuse it standing room to start the fight?"

The man's pose stiffened: "Who told ye I'd hindered anybody from sellin' ye land?"

"Wherever I inquire it is the same thing. They must ask permission of Bad Anse Havey before they can do as they wish with their own."

"By heaven, that's another lie," he said shortly. "But I reckon ye believe that, too. I did advise folks hereabouts against sellin' to strangers, but that was afore ye come."

He paced the length of the room while, then halted before her.

"Some of that property," he went on, and this time his voice was passionate in its earnestness. "has enough coal an' timber on it to make its owners rich some day. ## HOOSIERS OBSERVE BIRTHDAY OF POET J. WHITCOMB RILEY

Indiana Citizens Pay Tribute to Their Most Beloved Citizen—Proclamation Is Observed.
[IX ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 7.—James Whitcomb Riley's sixty-second birthday came today, and just to make it more memorable than any that has preceded it, the entire state joined him in celebrating it.

This year was picked for honoring the poet because the citizens of Indianapolis decided to pay him tribute while he would be fully able to take part in and enjoy it. In addition to the weight of years, Mr. Riley has felt the burden of ill health. He has reached the close of his life "when the frost is on the punkin', an' the toddler's in the shock," and the state of his birth and life-long residence felt that it didn't want to delay any longer the complete and formal expression of its love for him.

Governor Samuel E. Balston recently issued a proclamation asking every community in the state to set aside the day for the honoring of "Indiana's most beloved citizen." His plan was to have business suspended as much as possible. The proclamation is being generally observed in every city town and village, from Indianapolis down to Greenfield, where Mr. Riley was born, and Carlton, the tiny hamlet under the name of Taftbott, and the place of which the poet sang with the lines:

"You kin boast about yer cities, and their stiddy growth and size,
And brag about yer County-seats, and business enterprise,
And railroads, and factories, and all such foolery—
But the little Town o' Taftbott is big enough for me!"

Greenfield took particular interest in the observance. Many of its older inhabitants remembered James Whitcomb Riley as a little boy who used to talk to the world except as the son of Captain Reuben Riley, a highly respected citizen. Also it is recalled that it is situated on the banks of the Brandywine, the little stream whose joys the poet chronicled in "The Old Swimmin' Hole," and of which he had said, that wandering up and down it, he "had nigher to the square inch than ever anywhere."

Governor Balston, Mayor Joseph F. Bell, Charles Warren Fairbanks, Merle Edith Nicholson and George Ade had charge of the celebration in Indianapolis. In order to lend nation-wide interest to it, they invited celebrated persons from all over the country to attend. Many accepted.

William Allen White came from Emporia, Kas.; Dr. John H. Finley and General George Harvey from New York; Channing from Boston and Young F. Allison from Louisville, Ky., to help honor Mr. Riley.

The list of Indiana citizens taking part in the celebration is big. In addition to the members of the committee of arrangements, there were former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Senator Kern, Vice-President Marshall and others.

The program of the day called for an entertainment in a local theater in the afternoon and a banquet at which Mr. Riley was to be the guest of honor in the evening. It was expected that the poet would read a new poem at the banquet.

At the entertainment, several of Mr. Riley's poems, including "The Raggedy Man" and "Little Orphant Annie," were set to music by Mr. W. A. Stephens. Dancers from Anna Parker's company interpreted a number of the verses.

Hundreds who had hoped to attend the banquet this evening will be disappointed. The committee in charge have been compelled to reject scores of appeals for accommodations, as there are seats for but four hundred. Former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks will be toastmaster.

The coming of his birthday in October has a peculiar happiness for Mr. Riley. He said the other day, it is his favorite month, as he attests in his poem, "Old October." In it he says:

"I love old October so,
I can't bear to see her go—
Seems to me like losin' some Old-home relative er chum—
Pears like sorto settin' by
Some old friend 'at sigh by sigh
Was a-passin' out o' sight
Into everlastin' night."

James Whitcomb Riley was born at Greenfield, Indiana, October 7, 1849, the son of Captain Reuben A. Riley and Elizabeth Riley. He first began contributions to Indiana papers in 1873. His dialect poems brought him his greatest fame. His first book appeared under the pen-name, "Bebe F. Johnson of Boone." Among his best known poems are "Little Orphant Annie," "The Raggedy Man," "Leedle Dutch Baby," "The Old Swimmin' Hole," "An Ol' Sweetheart o' Mine," and "How John Quit the Farm."

MONROE BOOSTERS VISIT
MADISON FOR THREE HOURS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—For three hours yesterday afternoon Madison was entertained by citizens of Monroe, who came here as boosters for Monroe's annual cheese day festival to be held October 12. There were upwards of fifty auto loads of people, accompanied by a band which rendered music until the rain started about 4 o'clock.

PUTTING THE GARDEN IN ITS WINTER BED IS TRICK IN ITSELF

Department of Agriculture Tells of Best Methods to Preserve Plants in Winter.

At this season many inquiries come to the United States Department of Agriculture regarding the protection of garden plants and shrubs during the winter. Such flowers as peonies and hollyhocks will come up again the following year if they are properly protected during the winter, while others like cannaeas and dahlias, which are more耐寒, will be dug up and stored in a cellar. The department's specialists give the following suggestions for "putting the garden to bed."

Cover hardy perennials, such as peonies, larkspur, hollyhocks, columbine, iris, platycodon, and perennial poppies, with a good coating of manure or other litter to depth of three or four inches. In more southern locations, mulches of straw or hay will protect the plants from freezing to a depth that will cut off its water supply.

Canna and Dahlias. As soon as the tops of cannaeas, dahlias, gladioli, caladiums and similar plants are killed by frost, dig up the roots or bulbs and store them in a cellar where the temperature will never go below 50 degrees. Do not shake any more earth from the clumps of cannaeas and dahlias than is necessary in removing them from the ground. Place the plants on racks or in flat boxes so the air may circulate freely through them. No frost must reach the roots nor must they become too warm or dry.

Hydrangeas. Hydrangeas (semi-herbaceous) in the south will last through the winter out of doors, if properly cared for. The tops should be protected with straw or brush. This may be held in place about the bushes with stones or manmade stones. Flower buds of hydrangeas form in the fall, and this cover will keep them from winter-killing while shielding the bush from winds and sun. In the north hydrangeas must be taken up, planted in tubs and placed in the cellar. This is generally true of latitudes north of Philadelphia.

The shrub known as brugmansia, also called thorn apple, should be treated as the hydrangeas, but they are not nearly so far north. As a rule, shrubs should not be trimmed in the fall. This process is timely immediately after the blooming period, if this is in the spring, as in the case of the snowball. If the shrubs bloom in the fall, as do some hydrangeas, the rose of Sharon, and some lilacs, they should not be cut directly after blooming, but in the spring of the following year. Lilacs, snowballs, and mock orange should be let alone during the winter, being neither trimmed nor covered with straw or manure.

Roses. Almost all kinds of roses are hardy in the vicinities of Washington, D. C. and St. Louis and to the south of a line drawn between these points. From Washington northward local conditions influence the successful cultivation of certain varieties. Some species, as the briar and rugosa, need no protection, but other varieties, such as the hybrid perpetuals, teas, and hybrid-teas, need special care, particularly north of the forties parallel. Teas and hybrid teas hardly succeed in Chicago, although the hybrid-perpetuals grow as far north as Canada. All these classes do well on Long Island and in Boston near the sea, where proper care is given them. These varieties are in the vicinity of Washington need only a little manure on the ground to prevent alternate freezing and thawing. Farther north, however, they should be treated as follows:

Cut the tops to within 30 inches of the ground. Cover the roots with coarse manure or leaves or similar litter. Hold this in place by evergreen boughs which also acts as a protection. Brush from deciduous trees or shrubs may be substituted for the evergreens bought except in the most northern regions.

Mounts of earth about six or eight inches in height should be drawn about the base of the rose bushes to keep them from mice. As an added protection against mice, permit the ground to freeze slightly before winter protection is supplied. In fact, roses should not be protected until after the first light freeze, which may be expected in Washington, D. C. about the first of December, but earlier farther north.

Climbing Roses. In the latitude of Philadelphia and farther south climbing roses usually need no protection during the winter unless they are a particularly tender variety. Farther north, these roses need protection similar to that given to the tea and hybrid tea roses.

Where it is possible to do so, remove climbing roses from their supports, and cover the branches with a little dirt. A little fall trimming might be desirable to lessen the space occupied by the branches on the ground. Side branches as are not to be needed for next season's blooming may be cut off. Such cutting off and shortening of the ends as would otherwise be done in the spring, may be done in the fall before covering, merely for convenience.

ASSESSED VALUATION OF COUNTY BOOSTED

TOTAL OF $76,152,706 IS $1,387,498
HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR'S FIGURES.

LAND VALUES HIGHER

Rock County Real Estate Now Assessed at $62,269,497, $816,695 More Than in 1914.

The assessed valuation of all property in Rock county as compiled by County Clerk Howard W. Lee from the assessors' reports, is $76,152,706 for the year 1915, an increase of $1,387,498 over last year. The greater part of the increase is borne by the real estate which is valued at $62,269,497, or $816,695 higher, more than one half of the increase being made in the city of Beloit and the town of Beloit, an advance of $26,805 for the former, $178,320 for the latter, or $432,125 together. There is practically no change in the assessed valuation of taxable real estate, the advance for the year being but $207,75.

The increase in the value of personal property over last year amounts to $570,803, according to the report.

Leaf tobacco bears by far the larger proportion of this increase, the assessed valuation for this year being $1,217,075, or $186,742 more than in 1914.

There are some four hundred more automobiles in the county this year than there were in 1914, and their valuation is up at $766,695, or $54,220 more than last year. There is little change in the number of farm animals in the county, and the valuation is in most cases about the same or slightly higher than it was in 1914. Merchants' stock has increased in value by $47,313, according to the report, while manufacturers' stock is up $40,390 higher.

Comparing with Beloit, Janes-ville's assessed valuation is $1,274,085, while the difference last year was but $725,800, this fact being attributable to Janesville's zeal in assessing personal property, the assessment for Janesville on this item being $738,210 more than in Beloit.

In the following table is given the total assessed valuation of real and personal property, and the total valuation of property for the various assessment districts:

Pitching Departments Strong For World's Series Games

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Oct. 7.—As was the case last season, when the same cities but different clubs were involved in the World's series, Philadelphia and Boston will enter the pitching struggle for the prize of the baseball crown with the same numerical strength in the pitching department. Both the Phillies and the Red Sox have eight twirlers who can be called to the mound by Managers Moran and Carrigan but it is likely that not more than half this force of hurlers will be started during the series which begins late this week. The Phillies' pitching staff includes Alexander, Demaree, McQuillen, Rixey, Chalmers, May, Talcup and Baumgartner. The Red Sox' staff includes Foster, Leonard, Ruth, Shore, Wood, Gregg, Collins and Mays. Several of these pitchers have not figured to any extent in the general season's play and it is possible that their names will not be found in the box scores when the final reckoning is made for the series of 1915. Those most likely to go to the mound as National league representatives are Alexander, Demaree, May, McQuillen, Rixey and Chalmers, while the American league pitchers will undoubtedly be selected from Foster, Leonard, Ruth, Shore, Wood and Gregg.

In considering the strength of the pitching departments of the Phillies and Red Sox it is therefore necessary to analyze the all-round ability of the sexes separately. An unusual difficulty is encountered at the very beginning since it is conceded that Alexander will be used in from two to three of the first four games depending upon the order of play. Alexander stands head and shoulder above his pitching teammates and is Manager Moran's trump card to be played at every possible opportunity and some clever base ball politicos and diplomacy has centered about the extraordinary ability of Phillips' star.

Alexander's pitching average for the season is more than 200 points higher than any of the other Philadelphia club twirlers. Taking the six named and averaging their records for the season, gives a team pitching average of .541. These figures do not represent the strength of the Phillies, however, if Alexander is used in, say three of possible six games. Under such a schedule the average would be increased more than one hundred percent and Moran is too shrewd a manager to overlook such an increase in strength. Following Alexander, May and Demaree have proved to be the successful twirlers for the National league pennant winners. McQuillen has won and lost an equal number of games while Rixey and Chalmers are slightly below the .500 mark.

Against this pitching staff of one star and five twirlers of moderate ability the Red Sox are able to muster six moundsmen none of whom can quite equal Alexander's record but all show an average ranging from .700 to figures fifty points higher. It is due to this high class average that the Boston staff, considered as a whole, ranks the Phillies by more than one hundred and seventy-five points. Many factors must enter into consideration when an effort is made to compare the strength of pitching staffs in a world's series. Assuming, however,

To avoid argument it may be conceded that football is more brutal than prize fighting. But neither is as brutal as women are to other women.

Easily Digested.

According to careful laboratory experiments, white flour is more easily digested, but whole wheat and graham flour have a greater amount of protein. White flour yields 1,150 calories a pound and whole wheat only 1,140 calories. The best bread flour is that which takes the greatest amount of moisture and the best pastry flour which takes the least.

Inherited Qualities.

Science has proved to us beyond a doubt that long before men and women lived in homes and even huts they lived in the branches of trees. The strength found in a new born baby's hands and fingers is an inheritance of prehistoric ages, when children and grown-ups alike spent much of their leisure by day and lived at night in the branches of trees.

It was Peter Sharp who discovered that two women cannot live peacefully in the same house. Had Mr. Sharp pursued his investigations a little further he would have discovered that it is extremely difficult for two women to live peacefully in the same neighborhood.

Buck Kilby says his notion of uneducated money is that paid out to see a prize fighter perform in a theatre.

If women really want the ballot they should cry for it. Broadly speaking, a woman can have anything for which she is willing to shed tears.

When a political party holds a love feast, that indicates it hasn't much of a chance.

It is a thing a woman never is likely to need, she is pretty sure to put it carefully away.

A good many men are remembered only for the reason they wore mustaches.

Life is tiresome enough without spending it in visiting relatives.

It is to be regretted, of course, but do not permit the fact that the great herds of buffalo have all been wiped out to interfere with your business.

Deducting the time he spends looking for a mate, the average man lives about fifteen years.

Another thing that makes a bride angry is to have her husband forget the fourth weekly anniversary of their wedding.

To avoid argument it may be conceded that football is more brutal than prize fighting. But neither is as brutal as women are to other women.

NAVY LEAGUE PLANS CAMPAIGN IN STATE FOR PREPAREDNESS

Manitowoc Man Has Accepted Chairmanship of Wisconsin Body.—To Start Work Soon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—An aggressive campaign for national preparedness throughout the state of Wisconsin is planned by the Navy League of the United States, and preparations are under way for beginning active work. Charles G. West, of Manitowoc, Wis., has accepted the chairmanship of the state committee in charge of Navy League work and has endorsed the preparedness movement in an enthusiastic letter to Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the league.

Mr. West has long been one of the honorary vice presidents of the Navy League, and feels that the present is an opportune time to rally the people of Wisconsin to the support of President Wilson's policy of preparation to meet national emergencies and to maintain our national dignity and self respect.

Badger League Members.

Active members of the Navy League scattered throughout Wisconsin who will be associated with Mr. West in the work of awakening the state to the necessity of preparedness are Charles A. Juls, Alvin P. Fleisch, Charles F. Postle, Ferdinand Schlesinger, Horace J. Cipriani, T. G. Warkman and Hugh L. Williams, Jr., of Milwaukee; W. O. Hotchkiss, Prof. Alexander Kerr, Prof. John May, John P. Mallard, John B. Saborn, V. Scott and S. E. Sparling, Madison; Henry Bitschenbauer and H. B. Walker of Ashland; Stinegan B. Chapin, T. R. P. Davidson and Norman W. Morris of Lake Geneva; C. B. Culbertson, Stanley, Clarence W. Diver of Waukesha; J. C. Green of Waukesha; J. H. Gilliland, Jas. L. Hoyt of Kenosha; D. M. Kneeland of Waukesha; Ivan Lohmann and Walter Lester of Sheboygan; Amy D. Barnes of Ripon; A. J. Burney of Sparta; A. P. Lovejoy of Janesville; Richard Meyer, Jr., of Lancaster and John S. Owen of Elkhorn.

The nucleus of the Navy Leagues organization, a state committee consisting of representatives from every congressional district, will be appointed, each of whom will supervise the work in his particular section of the state. Many of the most active and influential men in Wisconsin have expressed their willingness to serve on the committee and it is believed that much can be done to build up the sentiment in behalf of an adequate navy throughout Wisconsin.

National Movement.

The Navy League's campaign in Wisconsin is a part of a great movement throughout the whole country to awaken American citizens generally to the dangers of attack and invasion which may result from our unprepared condition. State committees will be appointed in every state to supervise local work and a huge membership committee with members in every town and village throughout the United States will be appointed.

The Navy League believes that in the light of current history it is foolish to say that this country may not be drawn into war, and criminal folly to neglect to prepare adequate defenses. It believes that this country's greatest strength lies in its isolation and the fact that three thousand miles of water must be passed by any force which would invade our own country, and therefore, if we maintain a navy powerful enough to hold command of the sea, we will never risk being invaded and forced to fight a destructive and bloody war on our own territory.

Oldest Defense Body.

The Navy League is the oldest and best organized of the national defense societies. It was founded in 1901 and is in existence to insure the safety of the United States against the possibility of ever being invaded. Among the officers and members are many of the most prominent and respected American citizens, including such men as Admiral Dewey, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Cardinal Gibbons, Theodore Roosevelt and a host of others.

The headquarters of the Navy League are in the Southern Building, Washington, and information concerning the league will be supplied on application.

STUDENT COURT WILL HAVE FIRST MEETING

Janesville, Wis., Oct. 7.—At the instigation of President Van Hise, the legal council of the University of Wisconsin at its last regular meeting, had planned to present to the extent of the student law the classmen who have revived hazing. This form of student activity has stopped out again in virulent form and has brought from President Van Hise a strenuous protest.

During the first two weeks of the term, freshmen were ducked in Lake Mendota, forced to secrete the coeds.

Each individual student may dance in dischargeable. The Student court has the power to bring John Doe proceedings under which any bather may be haled before the court and sentenced to suspension of from two to three days or for the whole semester.

Glenn R. Turner, prosecutor of the court, has issued a warning to the sophomore that he intends to bring prosecution and today's meetings of the court will probably see number of suspensions.

CAUSING WORRY TO CHICAGO GRAFTERS

Barney Bertsche, "clairvoyant king" of Chicago and confessed criminal, is causing great worry to several public officials of Chicago. He says that he paid huge sums in graft to important officials for police protection. Two former city detectives, Walter O'Brien and William J. Hudson Maxim took up the ordnance and explosive business in 1888 and was the first to make smokeless powder in the United States, and the first to submit samples to the government for trial. He is the inventor of Maximite, the first high explosive to be fired through heavy armored plate. Andrew L. Ricker is vice-president and chief engineer of the Locomotive Company of America and was the first president of the Society of Automobile Engineers.

JOHN CHINAMAN IS SEEKING THE BULBS OF FLOWERING VINE

Annual Harvest May Not Be As Successful As Formerly Owing to High Water.

John Chinaman is a mysterious sort of an individual. He comes and goes but it is not always certain that the Chinaman seen like yesterday is the one that confronts you today. Usually John is as much an enigma as his white brother. He enjoys the good things of life, and while his tastes may differ from the average gourmand still he manages to obtain his chosen morsels of food even though under adverse circumstances and difficult conditions.

One of his delicious morsels beloved by all inhabitants of the Celestial Kingdom is the water millet. It grows in marshes and overflooded lands and when cooked, either whole as a potatoe or sliced and mixed with other foods it is delicious to the palate. It is about the size of an English walnut, hard and firm, with brown covering, but when peeled and prepared for use are pale and meaty.

Each year there is a delegation of Chinese who arrive in Janesville about this time to make their annual harvest from the marshes of the Rock river, where these American watermills are found. They are a substitute for the variety that is imported from China, but they meet the popular demand and are sold on the Chicago business markets to the restaurant keepers for use in their various concoctions. The harvest usually begins from the first week in October until the marshes and river is frozen, and no one but the silent fishermen know how many are obtained.

The chinaman goes after his watermills in much the same manner as does the clammer. He has a large basket hung over his back and a pair of long spear-like sticks with which he pulls the watermills from its resting place in the soft mud to the surface, and when he fills his basket he calmly walks ashore, dumps it in another basket and continues his work.

These watermills are the bulbs of a long clinging vine that grows to the surface of the water. The vine is some four feet long, and when in blossom has a pinkish or yellow flower. It floats around in the current and is easily detected. All John does is to pull up the vine bulb and all, detach the bulb and throw away the vine. The bulb when first taken from the water is soft, but hardens quickly in the air, and when skinned is white and capable of any number of uses by the Chinese cooks.

The fishers live in locations chosen by themselves. They do not mingle with other chins of the community, but prefer to live alone in some forsaken outbuilding near the scene of their labors. They adopt one American feature in their work however, rubber boots which reach to the hips, but otherwise they use the primitive methods of their forefathers in China and have the long shears of bamboo and closely woven baskets swung over the shoulder so as to give free swing to the arms.

High water this year is making the harvesting of the crop difficult. The marshes are flooded compared to previous seasons, and the farmers who have already arrived shake their heads and mutter when asked about the crop prospects. The crop is shipped directly to Chicago wholesale Chinese supply houses, and is used in the most costly dishes of chow suey and yet garnished with the delicate bamboo sprouts, which also come from this country instead of China nowadays.

Usually a dozen Chinese work from six to eight weeks in the Chinese fields, but this year but few are here and little or no shipments have been made. One peculiar feature is that the Chinese do not trust the express companies, and send one of their party to the market with the harvest to the market with the harvest by train rather than to the express agents.

CHILDREN NOT LIVING WITH DIVORCED FATHER DO NOT GET COMPENSATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—Children of divorced wife who are not living with the father at the time of his accidental death are not entitled to compensation, according to decision of Judge Ray Stevens, in sustaining the demurser of the state industrial commission to the complaint of Mrs. Margaret Gerard. Gerard was accidentally killed while in the employ of C. A. Rothe of Waupun. The industrial commission awarded $3,000 to Mrs. Nellie Reed Gerard, a second wife with whom he was living at the time of his death. His first wife, Mrs. Margaret Gerard, who had been legally divorced, sought to secure a part of the award by reason of the fact that he was the mother of two of his minor children. The court held they were not living with him at the time of his death and denied the aid.

HEALTH BOARD BARS PLANT WITHIN CITY LIMITS OF MADISON

Packing Plant Refused Right to Locate Within the City Limits.—May Come Sore.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—Plans for establishment of a packing plant within the city limits received a jolt from the state board of health yesterday afternoon, when State Health Officer C. A. Harper made public a number of letters explaining conditions surrounding packing plants in other cities. Dr. Spenger of Wausau advises that the plant be made to go out "where you are sure there can never be any trouble." Dr. Bushman of La Crosse indicates a belief that a plant may be safely conducted within the city limits, but admits of receiving some complaints from the Liston Mill company about the plant in that city. Dr. Paquin, executive officer of the Kansas City health department, demands that a regale mistake be avoided "in getting house or anything of the kind within the city limits." A number of other health officials are quoted at length in the official statement.

Money for the new packing plant has been subscribed by farmers and others in southwestern Wisconsin. The officers were desirous of locating the plant near the east city limits, but one motion had resulted at two hearings before the corporation commission that no license has yet been issued. The city officials and others are attempting to have the plant located at some distance from the city, claiming that the smell would injure the value of nearby property.

STATES EN MASSE ENACT GAME LAWS

PRACTICALLY EVERY STATE IN UNION PREPARED SOME FORM OF GAME PROTECTION.

240 STATUTES MADE

Large Number of Laws Have Many Important and Novel Features to Be Regarded.

More than 240 new game laws were enacted during 1915—a larger number than in any previous year except 1911, according to Farmers' Bulletin 692, Game Laws for 1915. Forty-three states held regular legislative sessions, and in all of these states except Alabama, Georgia and Nebraska some changes were made in the statutes protecting game. The largest number of new game laws passed in any one state was 61 in North Carolina; but in Georgia, Connecticut, Maine, New Jersey, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin the number reached ten or more. Several measures were vetoed, including a general game bill in Idaho, the first bill appropriating the hunting license fund in Pennsylvania, a bill preventing game in California, and those sections of the game bill in Washington. A number of bills were introduced for the purpose of harmonizing the state laws on migratory birds with the federal regulations. In at least nine states changes were made which brought the seasons into substantial agreement, viz., California, Connecticut, Maine, Michigan, New Hampshire, Tennessee and West Virginia. Illinois' Illinois and Indiana laws for all protection birds, except waterfowl, and in Washington for the smaller shore birds, were made to conform with the regulations under the federal law. Uniformity was also secured by provisions in the laws of Connecticut, Maine, New Mexico, North Dakota, Washington and Wisconsin prohibiting hunting between sunset and sunrise. On the other hand, Delaware adopted a bill opposing the protection of birds now in Ohio and Rhode Island, which had harmonized their season in 1914, changed the seasons on waterfowl.

As a result, the decision of the supreme court of the United States on Jan. 19, 1914, sustaining the alien hunting law of Pennsylvania, legislation prohibiting aliens from hunting or owning shotguns or rifles, was enacted in at least four states—Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Virginia—but certain exceptions based on property qualifications were made in Massachusetts and New Jersey.

Close seasons extending for several years were provided for certain kinds of big game and also for game birds. Hunting mountain sheep was suspended in Idaho, Montana and Washington, and goats were protected until 1918 in Montana. Moose were protected for four years in Maine, the first close season in the state since the suspension of hunting from 1878 to 1886.

Antelope were given indefinite protection in New Mexico and Montana. In Michigan, New Mexico and Oklahoma prairie chickens were protected for several years. Michigan extended complete protection also to quail, pheasants, grouse and wood ducks for five years. Minnesota protected ring-neck pheasants, grouse, robins, and meadow larks for two years.

Mrs. Elizabeth Flaherty left today to spend a month with her son in Milwaukee.

Mrs. Eugene Flaherty and Mrs. Sergeant of Brandon, Wis., went to Delavan Tuesday to spend a few days at the home of the former's daughter, Mrs. J. M. McCabe.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Sweet spent Tuesday night in Beloit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kidder.

Miss Adeline Richards spent Tuesday in Delavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Mereness, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Beardksley and Charles Beardksley motored to Beloit today.

For the first time in twelve years moose hunting is permitted in Wyoming, and for the first time since 1907 prairie chicken shooting is permitted in North Dakota.

Novel Features of State Laws.

Among the novel features in the laws this year may be mentioned the declaration in the Florida law that ownership of game is vested in the respective counties; the provision in the California law protecting spike buck, or deer with unbranched horns, instead of deer with horns of a certain length; and the Wyoming experiment allowing the killing of fifty bull moose under $100 licenses instead of an indefinite number during limited periods of hunting, restricted in Michigan by prohibiting the use of automobiles in hunting, cartridges, and in Indiana by prohibiting the use of searchlights or other artificial lights attached to autos for hunting game on or near a highway. Several new restrictions on shipments appeared for the first time. Illinois prohibited importation from points outside the state of any game except deer legally killed; Pennsylvania prohibited shipment of game by parcel post; and Wisconsin required under an alias, Connecticut, and authorized the commissioners of fisheries and game to grant permits to bring in game lawfully killed outside the state, provided such game is not offered for sale.

BETTY'S GREAT FIND

By FLOYD CLAY.

It was the biggest garret for fifty miles around. He who had planned and built the house had not paid special attention to the rooms and halls below, but he had provided a garret that all who came after him should be proud of. It was long and wide and contained treasures beyond enumeration in the shape of spinning wheels and bedsteads and bureaus and chairs and what not of the long ago.

An antiquarian who came one day and was allowed to look but not to touch, said to the eldest sister:

"There is nothing like it under the sun. If you will let me dig here for a week I will give you a hundred dollars."

"Not for a thousand," was the reply.

"But why?"

"Because you would make a dust ed litter."

When Betty Lawrence, a cousin, at the age of ten had visited the Misses Shaw and become homesick and shed tears, the sisters comforted her by promising:

"Now, Betty, chirp up and be a good girl and you shall see our garret."

Now, at nineteen, she was a visitor to the old house again. She had a lively remembrance of that quaint room and was determined to overturn it if given half a chance. She dwelt upon the idea so constantly that she came to believe that somewhere in that collection of musty relics of the past there lay concealed a document which would bring a treasure to its finder. She even pictured herself standing before her started old cousins, document in hand, this announcement on her lips:

"My dear cousins, I have found a great treasure."

One day, while waiting her opportunity to explore the garret, a young man known to the sisters called on a friend for his mother and was introduced to Miss Betty as Mr. Ford Kirkwood. The following day while Ford was out for a walk, he turned up as if by accident. This happened again on the third day, and on the fourth he forgot to offer an excuse for its rather marked recurrence. Within a week it had happened so frequently that neither saw anything unconventional in the matter.

This rapidly developing acquaintance did not escape the vigilant eyes of the cousins. One day the elder sister observed frankly:

"I suppose I ought to warn you against love at first sight."

"But as you never loved at first sight or second sight or any other sight, how can you, Cousin Phoebe?"

At this the gentle old woman smiled feebly.

"Ford Kirkwood is a fine young man, but he has no money," she went on dutifully.

"Nor have I. I shall not fall in love, dear cousin. I shall not elope. I shall never marry—at least not until—"

"Until when, Betty?"

"Until I find treasure," declared the girl as if she meant it. In her soul she believed there was a treasure in that garret. She felt like demanding the privilege of exploration, but still she bided her time.

Her opportunity came suddenly.

There came a day when the sisters were called away on a matter of business which demanded their personal attention.

"I am so afraid you will be lonely," said the older sister sympathetically. "We shall be away at least three hours."

"Oh, no; I can take a long walk and then read awhile after coming back," said Betty, trying hard to keep her voice steady.

Scarcely was the vehicle bearing the sisters out of sight when Betty ran to the garret. Once within the forbidden treasure house she stood for a long five minutes feasting her eyes. Then she selected the oldest and most battered trunk of the entire lot for inspection.

Letters and documents? Why, the trunk was full to repletion with them. There were deeds, mortgages, receipts, bills of sale, private letters, grants and what not, and the girl had only a glimmering of what had once been their legal value. Three hours had gone by and the return of the sisters might be expected at any moment when she selected a parchment almost at random, replaced the others in the trunk and left the fascinating spot.

"Nobody but an old pirate could have written a band like that, and of course if he was a pirate he must have written about a treasure. I shall ask Mr. Kirkwood to help to unravel it."

When he saw it Ford Kirkwood agreed with Betty that it was the work of an old pirate, but he admitted frankly that he was not an adept at deciphering hieroglyphics.

"It will have to be done," said Betty, determinedly, "before—before—"

"Why not postpone it until—"

"Until?"

"Until after we are married," he flushed heroically.

"But I have promised Cousin Phoebe I shall never marry until I have found a treasure," she said with a great attempt to be serious.

"Well, haven't you found me?" he suggested brazenly. "And I have found you—the most precious treasure of all," he added gallantly.

dry spell when vegetation was parched and good people gathered at the church to pray for rain. Gentle petitions were sent up, but Deacon Strong was not satisfied, and in daring words, tones he belloved for rain, more rain and lots of it. Before the people could get home there came a cloud burst and water fell in torrents, carrying away the bridges, furrowing the hillsides and converting marker lines into rivulets, which destroyed the young plants. Deacon Strong was castigated: "Pesky old fool, he always overdoes it."

PHONE 76 OLD; 62 NEW FOR BASEBALL SCORES

Anxious Fans Seem to Pick Every Department But the Correct One for Sport Results.

Considerable trouble was experienced by the business office of the Gazette, Wednesday afternoon, because baseball fans called up that department to learn the result of the first game of the Chicago city series. The game was true on last Saturday and the week previous when followers of football teams persisted in taking the first number that caught their eye in the telephone book and making their call.

As the editorial department handles all sport reports and other news matter which appears in the paper, except the advertising, it would save considerable time and inconvenience if the fans who would call the news department direct Wisconsin No. 76, and Rock County No. 76.

The world series opens tomorrow at about 1:30 o'clock, Janesville time. Local fans will be able to get the results of the first game between Philadelphia and Boston after four o'clock each afternoon the teams play, which is allowing sufficient time for an ordinary game and the transmission of the telegraphic reports to this office. No reports of games will be given out previous to four o'clock.

In order to obtain the final results as quickly as possible the Gazette has made special arrangements with the Western Union for a direct wire report for both the world championship series and the Sox-Cubs struggle. The scores will be posted on the bulletin board in the Gazette as fast as received and will also be posted on the Gazette bulletin boards at Miller Bros., Maurice Damon's and Harry Van Gilder's, as fast as they can be received from Milwaukee. Those interested may secure the results by calling at the time.

"DRESS UP WEEK"

OCTOBER 9TH TO 16TH

Men Can Well Afford to Put on Their Outdoors the Evidence of the Prosperity in Their Pockets.

The immediate object of a "Dress Up" campaign is to increase the demand for and the consumption of clothes this fall. The present business conditions are seemingly just right to make it possible for the middle class men. Enormous crops are being sold at high prices. Industry is busy. Unemployment is disappearing.

Never in the world's history was a nation as favored as the United States today. The earth is about to give us ten billion dollars in crops. Our steel industry is working at or close to capacity. The railroads are rolling along. Those interested may secure the results by calling at the time.

The football eleves of the Big Nine and other big schools and colleges will swing into real action on Saturday. Similar to last year the Gazette will receive results of the more important games played. Generally, these reports are received from Milwaukee at one time, usually about five o'clock. Those interested may secure the results by calling at the time.

Our banks hold two billion dollars in gold—probably the greatest reserve ever accumulated in any country.

Each week is adding to our foreign trade balance. The American dollar has become the standard of foreign exchange.

All these things spell prosperity. No one prosperity which will touch every stratum of American life.

The further object of the "Dress Up" campaign is to make men generally feel the necessity of looking the part of prosperity by being well dressed.

ALLEGED EXPERTS "DOPE" OF WORLD SERIES IN PAST NEVER RAN TRUE TO FORM.

(The Strike.)

After carefully reading between three and four volumes of pure unadulterated "dope" on the world series and considering it from all angles the average fan is thoroughly convinced that the team which wins the most games will win.

According to Webster, "dope" is simpifying drink, used for criminal purposes, as for the robbery of the newspaper stand for newsboys or for grain. Evidently both meanings have a connection when doping the present world series is concerned.

Every big city paper is "doping" the world series and all on alleged experts who have a system of figuring just how many runs will be scored and probably down so fine, he can tell just how that Alexander is going to spend his share of the big melon splitting. In the past world series, the first was surprised to see that the "dope" was reversed and the unanticipated happened. Four to seven games is entirely too short to do what any player will do for the conditions of a world series have to be considered with. When the Cubs and the White Sox fought for the title, the almost universal opinion was that the Cubs would trim the Sox with ease. The dope experts figured the Sox did have a chance. They guessed wrong. Then the Giants and the Athletics met the first time. The New York team was heavy favorites. The dove went wrong. In the Sox-Cub series the star of the series was Hobo, a utility infielder who was released the next year.

Last year everyone figured that the Braves were licked before they even went up against Connie Mack's million-dollar team. Many thought they would be lucky to win a game. The baseball experts figured down that the chances were but a minimum. In comparing players they had Baker knocking home runs every day, Collins making Evers look like a novice. Once again as usual, the dove went wrong, when the Braves won four straight and Baker and Collins failed to deliver. (This comparison of players and forecasting dope must be classed under the first meaning of dope as given by Webster. Baseball cannot be doped for it is the unexpected that makes the game a success.) It has been nearly always the star man of a team is the hero of the series as in the case of Adams, Pirate pitcher. And most often the really great players fail to deliver in the climax games. Cobb, in the Tiger-Cubs series, was far from a sensation and the same is true of Collins in last year's series.

One thing sure the results of the pennant races this year means the end of the immensely salaried managers. Bat Moxey, an outcast managing the hopeless Phillips, because the owners did not wish to loose more money by hiring a supposedly great manager. His cast-off players, pulled together and won. The Braves last year were a bunch of misfits and their fighting spirit won. Comiskey tried to buy a pennant this year and failed. Simply because the club did not play together.

One may expect the unexpected to happen and it is safe to "dope" now that the predictions of the alleged experts will not run true to form in the coming series.

ARGENTINA OFFERS PROMISING MARKET FOR U. S. STOCKMEN

Importation Restrictions Off and American Breeders Can Now Share Former British Monopoly.

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Buenos Aires, Oct. 7.—The removal of the interdict upon the importation of American cattle into Argentina opens to American breeders a most promising market that has been monopolized by British breeders heretofore.

Already some of the Argentine estancieros, as the owners of great ranches are called, have taken interest in the possibilities of the new conditions and as a pioneer in the trade, Senor Celiendo Pereda, one of the most prominent of the Argentine ranchmen, has gone to the United States to select bulls and other blood stock for his vast estates.

In view of the phenomenal advance in the prices for live stock in the Argentine and the probability that they may reach still greater heights, particularly if the European war continues, it is assumed that the estancieros who seek cattle in the United States will be prepared to pay well for choice stock.

The Argentine has suffered trade disturbance as the result of the war and during the past two years the country has been passing through what is called here a "crisis of progress"—the result of lavish expenditure of borrowed capital in national and provincial public works. But in the face of these adverse conditions, there is the outstanding significant fact that a single champion Durham bull, for instance, has just sold at auction for $60,000 per head (the Argentine paper dollar being equivalent to about 42 cents gold).

The average price at the Palermo show established many records. The favorite breed in the Argentine is now the Durham shorthorn, of which 200 bulls, making up the first lot put up at the auction, brought a total of $1,140,000 paper, or an average of $5,700 a head (about $2,515 American gold). And this does not include a six per cent commission which in this country is paid by the seller.

The Hereford has, it appears, declined in favor, the champion bull of that breed being sold for $12,000 paper, only a fifth of the price paid for the champion Durham.

The polled Angus, which was deemed the coming breed a few years ago, was in such little favor at Palermo that it was difficult to find a bidder. The champion of this class went for only $4,000 paper. The Angus, however, is in great demand among the establishments that pack frozen beef. Only recently prices in the cattle markets went as high as $400 paper for this type of steer—probably a world record.

One outcome of the flourishing state of the grazing industry may be improvements in the Argentine ranches. With the exception of a few localities, grazing is carried on under primitive conditions, with little application of science and exact knowledge.

Argentina is an ideal grazing country, but the natural pasture, except in privileged zones, is very scrubby. Owing to these visible disadvantages lands were sold by the league in the old times, the price being based upon the quantity of stock that could be carried. There are vast extensions, hundreds of thousands of leagues that are still obtainable at prairie value.

The poor settler, depending on these lands, would stand on the league if he had not a gun to shoot birds. But the rich syndicate or private investor could, and many do, buy with a view to improvement. When this is done judiciously the results are surprising.

In this country stock is never housed. Some animals preparing for the sale are raised in special paddocks but the animals used for the butcher rarely goes the inside of a building, tastes nothing but pasture-grass. This out-door life saves expense and doubtless avoids some of the cattle diseases. The settler who purchased land forty years ago at prairie value and put it under alfalfa, is the wealthy estanciero of today. Some of the big estancieros have been handed down from father to son, but Argentine law governs succession, is altogether contrary to the practice of hereditary interest, for when the owner dies there is generally a division of all his estate among his heirs.

The great enemy of grazing and agriculture, is drought and at present it is keenly felt in Cordoba, the principal alfalfa province where it is complicated by the locusts, a plague which has cost the Republic millions to keep out. It is believed that the depredations of the voracious insects are not so great as formerly, but just now it is admitted that the damages being caused are very great. The insects come from Bolivia, Brazil and Paraguay. They return to their quarters in those countries after Argentina has spent much money killing a more or less negligible percentage of them and they return in clouds the following season.

In regard to drought the problem is more complex. The Republic is so large and the irregular rainfall is so unequally distributed that the trouble is endemic in about nine-tenths of the total area. The various schemes of irrigation have cost enormous sums of money and created only an oasis here and there.

The skillful settler or wealthy estanciero contents himself with sinking wells and erecting windmills to supply his house and stock, but it is obviously impossible to overcome, by artificial means, the heavy handicap imposed by nature. Mr. Ross, an American expert, who has been touring the provinces, suggests a solution. He finds that there are 200 varieties of the cactus natural to the country. He thinks that this plant, deprived of thorns by breeding them out, would solve the difficulty. The cactus will thrive in the poorest soil, and 90 per cent of its leaf weight is water. The fibre of the plant is also declared useful for the textile industry. The alfalfa plant, however, must still continue to hold the field in a literal sense.

Use for Onions.

Onions are good for cleaning steel articles that have rusted. Rub the rust spots with a piece of onion and leave for 24 hours. Wash and polish with bathbrick dust, moistened with turpentine. Wash again in suds and scald with clear water. Knives that have rust spots of long standing should be plunged into an onion and allowed to stand for some time. Finish the cleaning process as above.

Amusements

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

AT MYERS THEATRE.

The Greater Vaudeville Performance at the Myers next Monday and Tuesday, offering a few variety acts of exceptional local talent, with the rest secured outside, at considerable expense, assisted by the Myers 5-piece orchestra, is going to be a highly popular attraction.

Speaking with the local people who have charge of the entertainment, they said: "The acts are arranged in a happy order and are run off in a snappy fashion that makes friends of the vaudeville patrons."

The famous Booster Quartet, who are making their farewell appearance before joining Lew Dockstader's Minstrels, made a decided hit on the Janesville public when they sang on previous Booster runs here.

Preston and Jobe offering something new in vaudeville have conquered their audience with their running fire of witty sayings and have kept the house rocking in their seats wherever they have played.

Roy Ryan, one of Janesville's leading performers, will offer to the theatregoers something clever in the line of buck and wing jiggling.

Jack Lauder, Harry's Oldest Son, distinguished Scotch comedienne, will appear in an original brilliant line of comedy and songs, having scored a success in the numerous places he has shown.

Miss Helen Franklin, who was featured in the moving pictures, "A Summer Day in Janesville," will appear in a unique line of aesthetic dancing.

Miss Manila Powers, who is well known as a classical singer of unusual ability, will render several solos, assisted by a special accompanist.

"Bill" McDonald and Sterling Campbell in their comedy acrobatic tumbling, bubbling over with ludicrous situations in their new version of their riotous laugh, have always scored a success in the many local entertainments of which they have taken part.

Therman and Wells, presenting the newest dances, will show a dazzling variety of the latest steps.

F. W. Murphy, unequalled whistling soloist, whistling both classical and popular ragtime songs, has swept the audience wherever he has appeared, at Koehlin's Jewelry store, in a Koehlin's Jewelry store.

AT THE PRINCESS.

Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley in "Scandal."

S. H. Joiner of 1115 Bennett street has raised a big cabbage in his garden. The head in particular weighs twenty-three pounds and is a monster, having a diameter of between fifteen and twenty inches. Mr. Joiner also enjoys daily sweet potatoes from his small truck farm.

RAISES BIG CABBAGE; HAS OWN SWEET 'TETERS

In "Scandal," the five act Broadway Universal Feature which will be presented at the Princess tomorrow, the Smalleys have achieved a masterpiece, having a diameter of between fifteen and twenty inches. Mr. Joiner also enjoys daily sweet potatoes from his small truck farm.
